Dear members of ISO Technical Committee (TC) 106,

On behalf of the members and staff of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI)—the U.S. member body to ISO—it is our pleasure to welcome ISO TC 106, Dentistry, to New Orleans for its October 2024 plenary meeting.

From the performance and safety of dental products to clinically relevant laboratory test methods, TC 106 has played a major role in assuring safe and effective oral healthcare for adults and children the world over. Thanks to the dedication of TC 106 and its committee members, 200 international standards advancing the dental care industry and public health have been published. The United States is proud to be one of thirty-one participating countries in this critical work.

My thanks go out to each of you involved in TC 106, for all of your hard work and ongoing efforts to develop globally relevant standards that address dentistry and oral health.

On behalf of ANSI and the U.S. standardization community, we extend our best wishes for very productive and successful meetings. We hope you have a great time in vibrant New Orleans, and enjoy all that it has to offer.

Best regards,
